

No Expectations Photography Exhibition

David Wala is having his debut solo exhibition at The Settle Down Café in Newcastle.

It features his rock music photography mainly from the past five years.

The exhibition highlights his work which is a mixture of local bands and world renowned acts.

David is in the final year of his BA in Creative Practice at Newcastle College while working as a freelance photographer. In 2008 he was named Fujifilm Student Photographer of the Year, beating entrants from throughout the country. His photography has been used by publications such as Rolling Stone and NME.

“I titled the exhibition ‘No Expectations’, as it is my first exhibition and I have no expectation to stand still, and hope to keep moving forward with my photography work. It is also the title of one of my favourite songs by the Rolling Stones.”

The exhibition is running at Square Yard Gallery in Newcastle city The exhibition is free to enter with prints available to buy.
